Answer ANY FIVE of the following. Each question carries SEVEN marks

(7x 5= 35)

- I. Explain the various tests for determining jurisdiction on the Internet with relevant case law.
- II. Explain the adjudication mechanism for civil wrongs coming under the purview of the Information Technology Act, 2000.
- III. Explain the law on electronic evidence in India with reference to Anvar P.V. vs. P.K. Basheer (2014) 10 SCC 473
- IV. Is electronic contract legal in India? Explain.
- V. Explain the framework for data protection in India with reference to provisions of the Information Technology Act, 2000
- VI. Discuss the concept of "Right to Be Forgotten". Does this cause a conflict between free speech rights and privacy rights.
- VII. Describe the powers of the Government as per the IT Act to monitor online communication.

PART - B

COMPULSORY question. Question carries FIFTEEN marks.

(1 X 15 =15)

- VIII. A customer review website approaches you for advice on a request that they have received for take down of a review. A restaurant has sent an email to the review website asking them to take down a review posted by a user on the website. The restaurant claims that the review is defamatory. The review website does not want to honour this request as they feel such take-down of content could affect the usefulness of the website. The website wants to know if they should take down the review and whether they could be held liable for defamation, if the restaurant approaches a court. The review website does not exercise any editorial control over content posted by users. Draft a legal opinion based on provisions of the law and relevant case law.
